ABOUT RUBARB AND THE ROLE

rubarb is a fast-growing start-up in the booming financial industry based in Hamburg. With a team of exceptional people, we help consumers to have more money at the end of each month. In November 2020 we went live with our easy-to-use app, offering users the opportunity to define their financial dreams.

Users can easily save money through round-ups, savings plans or one time pay-ins for each of these dreams. Their savings are automatically invested into globally diversified sustainable ETF portfolios. rubarb also helps users save up to €500 annually per large bill by automatically changing providers for e.g. energy contracts to the best offer each year again and again.

Are you as enthusiastic about building something meaningful as we are? Do you enjoy a fast-paced environment with quick decision-making processes and have a preference for action yourself? If you are curious to experience the scaling phase of a startup first-hand, this could be just the right opportunity for you. You will get the chance to significantly contribute to building and growing rubarb with a focus on strategy, investor relations and partnerships.

YOUR RESPONSIBILITIES

As Entrepreneur in Residence Intern to the CPO, you will work alongside rubarb co-founder Jakob and support him and the Product team in operational as well as strategic questions of our day-to-day business with a focus on building the product. You will find yourself right at the intersection between tech, product and design and learn about product management. In that position, your main mission will be to successfully shepherd the product or individual features through each product development phase.

- You will conduct market research to generate user insights and feedback in order to find the ideal product/market fit
- You will facilitate ceremonies, manage the product backlog and refine input for our product discovery and delivery processes
- With the help of data and research, you will develop a deep understanding of what drives our customers and how we can further support them on their customer journey
- You will drive each product development phase by prioritising tasks and strategies
- You will set up and improve processes to serve both existing and new customers and to enable strong growth
- In general, you will support in achieving our short as well as long-term product growth goals
- You will work closely with the tech, product and customer support teams always aiming at continuously improving the product experience

YOUR PROFILE

- You are a matriculated bachelor or master student in business studies, economics, marketing or a comparable field
- You have first practical experience working in a fast-paced environment, ideally even in the fields of product or tech
- You have a technical affinity and are interested in learning more about product development
- You are proactive and you like to get things done whilst upholding high standards
- You possess very good analytical as well as conceptual skills and are curious to learn new things
- You are not afraid to say "I don't know" and thus are willing to learn
- You possess very good English skills
- Last but not least, you have a sense of humour, a positive outlook on life, and you love working on something meaningful with a team of many highly ambitious and smart people
